1) A doctor, Mother and Lima were sitting beside Tom's bed. Tom was lying in bed and complaining of a headache. He had a cough, but no temperature. "What else is hurting you?" the doctor asked. "My throat and ears, and my nose won't stop running." "Poor little guy," Mother said. She was worried about her son's health. Tom sneezed and said that his stomach also hurt and he had a burning in his chest. "Very strange symptoms," said the doctor, surprised. "I'll prescribe aspirin, antibiotics and breathing treatments. After that you will receive several injections, and maybe even an IV (внутривенная капельница). It looks like you have come down with a serious case of the flu."

2) Doctor: Good morning, Mr. Hocking. How are you feeling today?

Patient: I have a headache and a sore throat.

Doctor: When did it start?

Patient: About a week ago.

Doctor: Why didn't you visit the hospital several days ago?

Patient: I thought I could cope with this by myself.

Doctor: What about other symptoms?

Patient: I also have a fever and feel pain while swallowing.

Doctor: Okay. Open your mouth and let me look at your throat. Oh, you have tonsillitis. You will need to take antibiotics. I'll give you a prescription.

Patient: How much time should I take pills?

Doctor: Just one pill twice a day, the treatment will take up to ten days but very likely you'll feel better in a couple of days.

Patient: Thank you.
